

THE CLIENT: Fortune 100 Retailer

National big box technology retailer.

THE SITUATION

This industry-leading Client was internationally recognized at the forefront of talent and team engagement in their industry. Yet their regional and store operations leaders struggled mightily with how to fully understand and integrate their massive employee engagement data drawn from a well-known international consultancy.

THE SOLUTION

Initially, the Client invited Dynatos Global to their headquarters to serve as a breakthrough catalyst for a full-day of advising to their entire human resources executive and regional team members in how to analyze, interpret and integrate their talent data into actionable, store-level practices.

THE RESULTS

From this intensive day of discovery, interpretation and integration, the executive team launched a wave of new exciting approaches in how to implement world class employee retention best practices throughout their national retail and distribution locations. For the first time these leaders finally understood what to do with the data that they had already invested millions of dollars to collect. The rollout of these new innovative practices included many regional executives inviting Dynatos Global to continue their advisory services within their operations.
